

JUVENILE OFFENDERS

How The Probation System is Being Operated To Their Advantage.

Edmonton, Oct. 30.—The child offenders have held the last of their annual conference of perplexity to Police Court. The old idea of punishment on eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, was only left behind as a relic of the past. The child was discharged or committed. The result in either case was the development of a criminal man in the child to evade the results of wrong doing, and a recognition on the part of those who were "wholly dissatisfied in the results of children, of the inadequacy of such a system to teach the principles of repentance and correction.

The Probation System is an outgrowth of this need. At the present time the Judge treats the child much as a school teacher a pupil, who has made an error in arithmetic, calculation and is required to work out his problem again under direction. The Judge has before him the child in the home conditions surrounding the child and contributing to his becoming a delinquent. The child is shown why he must make reparation. It is given to understand that there is a higher principle at work than what he probably considers a system of retaliation. He is not sent back alone to his old conditions, as formerly, but is placed under the supervision of a probation officer, a clear headed, sound headed individual who volunteers to give the boy a friendly hand, to take an interest in his work, his companions, his amusements. The probation officer is willing to advise the boy when he stands in need of it, to warn him of the consequences of persistent delinquency and to see that he is deprived of privileges or otherwise punished according to his offences.

In nearly every case where children have come under the influence of probation, they have responded immediately and according to the reports of probation officers throughout the province, have become all in and many inoffensive more than a firm discipline. The Superintendent of Neglected Children, Edmonton, calls for volunteers from every city and town in the Province of Alberta to act in the capacity of "Big Brothers" to the mischievous children whose ill-directed energy, if not properly steered by a firm discipline, will lead them into the ranks of confirmed criminals. Ninety-five per cent of one child delinquent need only such direction to become honest, industrious and in every way diligent.

LADIES' LIDS.

(Ladies Remember)

I remember, I remember
The hats they used to wear,
The little man they called a toque
That had a jaunty air,
And then there was another one
That had had its day.
The brim was flared over the brow
in this way.

And titled
I remember, I remember
When came the change of style;
The willow gave thought to it
With ruffling and a bow,
They took that cunning, flared up brim
And when they had designed
The curve had, it possessed a shape
That flared

up thus behind.

I remember, I remember
The hats they wore last year,
And some were high and some were low
And some stuck on the ear.
Most were fashioned headbow-wis,
A round and hollow cup,
The brim was tilted and a bit
So up
it went down.

I remember, I remember
But who believes me now?
I need not cite the many shapes
That all on women's heads
I notice, though, the hats this fall
Show fashions in play.
The broad-brim of the inverted now
are turned brims this way.

A BIRTHDAY DINNER.

A very pretty little dinner was given to A. L. Johnson at the residence of E. Perry on Monday evening last to celebrate his birthday. An excellent dinner was provided, which proved that the chef who prepared it was an artist of much ability. The guests were highly pleased and the lion of the evening expressed the opinion that social events of this description were far too infrequently held. After the toast had been responded to Mr. Johnson was the recipient of numerous and costly presents, which were tendered to him on appropriate silver, accompanied by a neat speech by Mrs. Perry. The party then adjourned to the cinema of the hall. There the guests were played and a most pleasant evening concluded with an elegant supper in the "new" room.

FACTS ABOUT CANADA.

Blended From the Department of Agriculture's "One Thousand Facts About Canada"—A Magnificent Showing.

To no way can Canadians brush up their knowledge of Canada more quickly and comprehensively than by a study of the facts officially supplied in the Department of Agriculture's "One Thousand Facts About Canada," and from it the following interesting statistics specially stated, are for the September ending June 30, 1914, are taken:

Starting Comparison.

Canada occupies one-third of the area of the British Empire.

Canada's proportion of population is only 1.2 to a square mile.

England has 315 and the United States 115 to a square mile.

Canada has nearly a million square miles of practically unexplored area.

Canada is bounded by three oceans.

Canada's area is one-third the area of the circumference of the earth.

Canada has 10,000 miles of coast line—1,000 being in British Columbia.

Canada is 8,000 miles wide and 1,400 miles deep.

Canada is larger in area than 18 Great Britain's and as large as 15 Germany's.

Canada is larger than Australia.

Canada's four organized Territories are larger than France and Germany.

Canada's three northern districts of the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon are larger than China (proper).

Canada has a continuous interior of 3,500 miles from the mouth of the St. Lawrence to the head of Lake Erie.

The Mackenzie River is, with its tributaries, the longest river in the world, the distance from Liverpool to its head.

Canada has 6,000 miles of water ways from the St. Lawrence to the Mackenzie, with only 15 miles of land bar.

The Victoria City is half-way between London and Hong Kong.

The two largest Provinces of British Columbia and Alberta will take 37,000 square miles each.

The Yukon district is almost as large as France.

The boundary line between Canada and the United States is 8,000 miles long—4,000 by land, 4,000 through water.

Canada's population by the first census of 1868 was 1,311.

Canada's population at Confederation, 1871, 3,000,000.

Canada's population, 1901, 5,711,115.

Canada's population, estimated, on June 30, 1914, 6,044,123.

Canada began the twentieth century with the same population as the United States began the nineteenth.

Canada has forty countries and nationalities represented in her population.

Canada has 132,101 more males than females.

Canada has more than one-half of the white population of all British colonies.

Canada has enfranchised 25 per cent of her population.

Canada has 71 per cent of Canadian-born people.

Canada has 45 per cent of British-born people.

Canada has therefore 45 per cent of British-born people.

Canada has 45 per cent of British-born people.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

The Bazaar for the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid was quite a success. The ladies' large stock of goods was not all sold yet the receipts of the day were exceedingly satisfactory to those who so cheerfully gave their time and means in endeavoring to help meet the expenses of building the new church.

The proceeds of today were close to $100 having a profit of about $40 over the expenses.

The ladies still have for sale, quilts, ladies and children's apparel, dressing jackets, small mats, slippercases, which should at least realize $80 more.

Any one wishing to see these articles may do so calling on Miss Gordon or Mr. MacKinnon. The ladies hoped who so cheerfully exposed their thanks to those who visited or purchased goods at their bazaar, and in doing so to make special mention of the young men of the town whose liberality showed their avowed purpose of making the ladies' efforts a success.

A Book and a War.

Copyright questions are grave enough nowadays, but they no longer threaten to end in war, as the case of St. Clement's in the Irish case, and the case of the Irish converted from British, and is commemorated on June 8. He had a long and hard struggle with the law, and among other things, applied a certain Latin motto belonging to him, as every one who has read the book, "The Battle of the Marston," the book is dedicated to the one who will be seen of the D'Onnell during more than a thousand years, and may see some of the Royal Irish academy today, London Chronicle.

Old Service.

Old Service journals do hold in our among those who are wealthy enough to buy it because, within definite limits, it is perfect. The united skill of the best French chemists, painters, artists and sculptors of the time went to its making, the social necessity of earning a profit did not trouble the director of Service, for as any good monarch was always ready to make good the yearly loss.

Traditional perfection—no less—since it was that attained. Frenchmen of that day grumbled at the state of public money on the monarch's whim, but Louis took no heed. Service was always ready to make good the yearly loss.

INDIAN RAILROADS SATISFACTORY

AN IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF THE RED MAN

Annual Report of the Department of Indian Affairs, for the year ending March 31st, 1910, has been published. Most Satisfactory Year—Only Province Showing a Decline in British Columbia, Where Indians are being civilized by the missionaries. Ottawa.—The report of the department of Indian affairs for the year ending March 31st, 1910, is the most satisfactory yet issued by the department, showing a wide and steady improvement in the condition of the Indians and the development of settlement in the west have made things much better for the aborigines. In all provinces which show any moral decline, says the report, it is British Columbia, but this is due to the fact that it is the least of the Canadian west to feel the effects of "civilization" in the districts in which Indians are chiefly located. The entrance of railways with its attendant civilization has made the tribes have from time immemorial regarded as their hunting grounds and fishing grounds. The report shows that the Indians are becoming more civilized, more settled, more independent, a feeling of self-respect and self-reliance is being developed by the Indians, and the strength by outside agitators actuated by motives somewhat difficult to comprehend.

The Indians claim that under the old system they were not given their rights to the country well secured, but by the new system, secured, which reduces the issue to one between them and the provincial government. The report shows that the Indians are becoming more civilized, more settled, more independent, a feeling of self-respect and self-reliance is being developed by the Indians, and the strength by outside agitators actuated by motives somewhat difficult to comprehend.

The report of the department of Indian affairs shows that there has been a marked increase in the number of Indian births during the year. The number of Indian births during the year ending March 31st, 1910, was 2,409 Indian births during the year ending March 31st, 1909, and the number of Indian deaths during the year ending March 31st, 1910, was 1,000.

A COMPLEX SITUATION

Ontario Government Will Investigate Operation of Lingual Schools

Toronto.—Official session prevails at the parliament buildings, under the auspices of Bishop Fallon in connection with the operation of lingual schools in Ontario. The result of all that is written must be satisfactory. It is believed, however, in circles usually well informed, that Premier Whitney himself is moving in the matter. The impression grows, however, that the premier is seized with the seriousness of the situation, and is determined to deal with the matter in a way which has arisen, apart from any political expediency. Sir James is not likely to leave the province, but has investigated and analyzed each of the departments, and the result may be able to place before him.
